THINK TANKS 2023-2024

From September 2023 the Health Research Institute will be convening monthly research 'think tanks' as a forum for supporting the development of research funding applications. This may take the form of preliminary conversations in response to horizon scanning future funding calls, a discussion about team composition for research bids, feedback on outline proposals, or other issues related to research funding and planning. It offers an opportunity for an informal chat with experienced researchers and colleagues from different disciplines - bringing expertise from a range of perspectives to support robust research proposals.

The forum will be open to both internal colleagues and external collaborators, so please come along and have a chat!

Calendar invites will be sent to you shortly.
